Two Soldiers Tell FBI Of Crime Wave

Confess To Seven Murders While Crossing Country

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Two closed-mouth teen-agers cracked under interrogation Sunday and said they killed seven persons during a brutal cross-country robbery spree, the FBI reported.

They thought they had killed nine, or at least eight. Their gun carried eight notches on the handle.

But FBI agent-in-charge Leonard Blaylock said two of those nine had not been killed. Robbery was the reason they gave, he said.

Here's the report by the FBI on the pair—George Ronald York, 18, of Jacksonville, Fla., and James Douglas Latham, 19, of Mauriceville, Tex.—who were arrested Saturday noon by an alert Utah sheriff:

Started On May 29

It started May 29 with the strangling of two Georgia women who had gone to Jacksonville with what they figured was a sure combination to win the daily double.

The two men took the women's money, car and .38-caliber revolver which was in the glove compartment.

It ended with the shooting of an 18-year-old girl they met at a carnival in Craig, Colo., last Friday night.

Killed Elderly Negro

On the way, an elderly Negro from Tennessee was robbed and killed.

They took his car to Illinois where they robbed and killed a filling station operator and another man whose car and .22-caliber revolver they took to Kansas and robbed and killed an elderly railroad.

Then they met the Colorado girl, who thought she was going with them to California for a brief vacation. They robbed and killed her and maintained they did not sexually assault her.

The other two they thought they killed were a man in Louisiana whom they beat up and robbed and an unidentified man in a car whom they shot at near Atkins, S.C., and thought maybe they had killed him.

Victims Identified

The women killed in Jacksonville were Althea Ottavio, 43, and Patricia Anne Hewitt, 25, of Valdosta, Ga.

The elderly Tennessee Negro was John A. Whitaker. That happened last Wednesday at Tullahoma, Tenn.

Albert E. Reed, 35, of Litchfield, Ill., was killed Thursday near Edwardsville, Ill., which is seven miles from where the Granite City, Ill., filling station operator, Martin Drenovac, 69, was killed the same day.

Otto Ziegler, 62, was the Union Pacific roadmaster killed Friday near Wallace, Kan.

And Rachel Marian Moyer, 18, of Craig, was the Colorado girl whom they met Friday night and whose body was found along a river outside town the next morning.

The FBI said the two soldiers were AWOL from the Army disciplinary barracks at Ft. Hood, Tex. They were held here under $10,000 bond for violation of the Federal Stolen Car Act.

Blaylock, said it will be up to the U.S. attorney in Knoxville, Tenn., to decide whether they will be prosecuted in Florida, Tennessee, Illinois, Kansas or Colorado.

Junta Pledges Establishment Of New Order

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The military junta pledged Sunday establishment of a new order in the structure of the South Korean economy, which it said was wrecked by corrupt collusion between the previous civilian governments and its big business friends.

It said readjustment and improvement of the economic structure started with the current investigation for punishing wealthy businessmen and government officials who profited illicitly. Twenty-nine celebrities now are being investigated by a special committee headed by Maj. Gen. Lee Ju-il of the ruling junta.

A statement was issued by the junta to "explain the principles for dealing with illegal accumulation of wealth." It said the present economic setup was a "source of corruption and evils."

An interim report by the investigators last week said $14.8 million had been earned illicitly or illegally spent by 12 businessmen under arrest. All such money is to be turned over to the national treasury, according to a junta decree.

The statement said the handling of tungsten mining, "the dollar box of Korea," was a classic example of corruption in the governments of President Syngman Rhee and Premier John M. Chang.

It said Rhee's government and party nine years ago obtained a huge political fund from businessmen who profited by obtaining government-held dollar proceeds from tungsten export. Through the purchase of dollars at an unrealistic cheap exchange rate and sale in the free market of fertilizer and grains imported with the funds, these pro-government business interests profited an estimated $307 million at that time, the junta asserted.

Blaylock, said it will be up to the U.S. attorney in Knoxville, Tenn., to decide whether they will be prosecuted in Florida, Tennessee, Illinois, Kansas or Colorado.

Tractor-Bargaining Team Leaves Today For Havana

WASHINGTON (AP)—A four-man bargaining team assembled in Washington Sunday to complete preparations for a mission to Havana which it hopes will bring freedom for 1,200 Cuban rebels in exchange for 500 tractors.

The four — three agricultural professors and a labor union official — are to represent the Tractors-for-Freedom Committee in negotiations with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro. If all goes well, these talks will start late Monday or Tuesday in Havana.

Officially, the negotiators are here only to pick up their visas from the Czech Embassy Monday morning and then hurry on to Cuba. Because the United States and Cuba have no diplo-

73 Air Passengers On Tour Have Harrowing Experience

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP)—An airliner packed with vacation-bound Americans went into a terrifying shudder under the approaches to Europe Sunday and the pilot warned, "We may have to ditch."

For 40 nightmarish minutes the big DC7 buffeted through the sky with one engine ablaze and roaring out of control. Not till parts of the engine fell off did the plane settle down again to be landed safely on three engines at Prestwick Airport.

The plane was on charter from Royal Dutch Airlines — KLM — by the Electric Boat Co. of Connecticut. Its 73 passengers were members of the company's athletic club headed for a three-week tour of Europe.

The plane, flown by a crew of nine, left Hartford, Conn., Saturday night and ran into trouble around 7 a.m. off the north coast of Ireland.

"It happened just after breakfast," said Stephen Keller, 24, of

James C. Hagerty Arrives In Tokyo

TOKYO (AP)—James C. Hagerty, stormed by leftist mobs a year ago in Tokyo as press secretary for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, arrived Sunday on a business trip.

His quiet arrival marked a sharp contrast to last June's visit when his car was rocked and battered by numerous leftist demonstrators who opposed the Japan-U.S. security treaty. He was finally rescued by a U.S. Marine helicopter.

Hagerty now is vice president of the American Broadcasting Co. in charge of news, special events and public affairs.

Washington Seen As Star-Shaped City In Year 2000

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's capital in 2000 may be a star-shaped city of five million population.

Official planners envisage a central city with six developed corridors—separated by open spaces—stretching out 20 to 30 miles. Rapid transit by rail and freeways would bind it all together. And they say the city can't survive another 40 years of haphazard sprawl.

William E. Finley, director of the National Capital Planning Commission, a federal agency, has made the proposed policy plan for the national capital region for the year 2000 public.

It was presented to representatives of the governing bodies of the area and to news reporters as a document to be used as the basis for future official actions.

He said implementation of the plan will be up to the federal government, the states of Maryland and Virginia and the local governmental units in the area. In its present form the proposal is primarily being offered for discussion.

Asked what will happen if the proposal or something like it is not carried out, Finley told reporters: "It is our duty as planners to point out that the area is heading for the most monumental traffic jam ever thought of if it continues to expand as it is doing. It cannot survive with random suburban sprawl for another 40 years."

Brooklyn. "The state of emergency lasted 40 minutes and we were told we might have to ditch."

James McKissack of New London, Conn., said he suddenly saw the port outer engine on fire.

"The vibration started and dishes were thrown off my lap," he said. "I was worried in case the fire spread to the whole wing."

The plane was then flying at 17,000 feet. The propeller, instead of spinning freely, was stuck to the domed nose of the rogue engine and both were revolving.

Pilot Wilhelm Bellink was unable to feather the prop, so he cut speed and came down to 1,000 feet. Then the propeller and dome fell off and the plane flew ahead on three engines.

In response to the plane's distress call, a plane of the U.S. Air Force 57th Rescue Squadron went up to act as escort. It was joined by a Shackleton of the Royal Air Force. Lifeboats were launched off the northern Irish coast.

Crash crews and fire trucks were waiting at Prestwick but the DC7 came down smoothly.

The captain and crew, together with 50 of the 73 passengers, flew on to Amsterdam in another plane. The remaining 23 passengers disembarked at Prestwick as planned.

Capt. Bellink, 39, said as he hurried to the Amsterdam plane: "This has never happened to me before—and I hope it will never happen again."

One of the proposals in a memorandum Khrushchev handed to President Kennedy in Vienna was that if East and West could not agree to hold an immediate peace conference on Germany the two German states should be given six months to hammer out a solution between themselves. If that did not work, he added, he would then go ahead with a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

Speaking Sunday to a rally of 300,000 people expelled from the former German province of Silesia in Hannover, Adenauer said: "This Soviet proposal we will never accept. We want self-determination and freedom for the entire German people."

He said President Kennedy had already made this Western attitude clear in Vienna.

He said implementation of the plan will be up to the federal government, the states of Maryland and Virginia and the local governmental units in the area. In its present form the proposal is primarily being offered for discussion.

Asked what will happen if the proposal or something like it is not carried out, Finley told reporters: "It is our duty as planners to point out that the area is heading for the most monumental traffic jam ever thought of if it continues to expand as it is doing. It cannot survive with random suburban sprawl for another 40 years."

He said this is based on an increase in population in the metropolitan area from the current some two million to about five million by 2000.

The plan advanced would have six development corridors extend outward in a star pattern from the present downtown Washington urban core.

These corridors would be along five presently planned freeways and a newly proposed sixth freeway to extend southeast into Maryland, with rail rapid transit basically operating between the freeway lanes.

The developed corridors would be four to six miles wide and extend 20 to 30 miles from the center.

Finley said the proposed development scheme is very much concerned with future open space instead of having urban sprawl with population running over the whole area like waffle batter would spread over a table.

He said the plan contemplates a reversal of the present policy of primary concentration of federal employment in downtown Washington.

About two-thirds of all future federal employment would be outside metro-center, just the opposite of now," Finley said. "There would be employment centers along the development corridors. There must be high density suburban centers in order to have an efficient rapid transit system."

Preservation of open space would require purchase of property as well as enactment of new zoning and other land-use laws and ordinances, Finley said, and would require laws which would give special tax treatment to lands lying within certain types of zones or restricted areas.

The discussions were considered among the most important on Stevenson's 18-day South American tour because of Quadros' friendly attitude toward the Cuban regime of Fidel Castro and efforts to increase Brazil's trade with the Soviet bloc.

There was no word as to what was said on specific subjects but Stevenson said they were agreed that improved living conditions of the people "is the best defense against extremists both from the right and the left." He said Quadros nodded agreement.

Stevenson also declared that he would carry back to the United States a strong feeling that there will be greater cooperation between the two countries.

The smiling Quadros, described by some as an independent thinker or possibly neutralist, told newsmen after the meeting that relations between the two countries are good.

The vessel was owned by the Neptune Charter Co. of Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Williams said her husband had been in Mexican waters since last October, using the boat in sports fishing.

North Vietnamese Seeking Food, Aid From Red Chinese

Premier Pham Arrives At Wuhan

TOKYO (AP)—North Viet Nam's premier, Pham Van Dong, began a visit to Red China Sunday at a moment of crisis, both at home and abroad, for his Communist country.

Pham arrived at Wuhan, in central China, on his way to a meeting with the Peiping hierarchy. They are expected to discuss developments in Laos and pro-Western South Viet Nam and possible effects of a food shortage facing the North Vietnamese. Then Pham proposes to tour other Communist nations.

The premier may well be worried about the stiffening U.S. opposition both in Laos and South Viet Nam to his efforts.

Three days hence, Nguyen Dinh Thuan, South Viet Nam's chief of security coordination, is to arrive in Washington for talks aimed at breaking the back of Communist subversion.

Following the visit to Saigon of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, the United States promised to increase the Vietnamese armed forces by 20,000 men as well as give military help to the 60,000 poorly armed civil guards fighting Red guerrillas.

President Ngo Dinh Diem has stepped up the campaign to root out the Communist underground which has torn up the South Viet Nam countryside for months.

The American firmness in the south has been accompanied by an unwillingness to give further ground in next-door Laos and an insistence that there be an effective cease-fire before the 14-nation Geneva conference gets down to Laotian questions of substance.

Beside these external problems, in which North Viet Nam is deeply involved, Pham is plagued by the food shortage, which is said to seriously affect the 16 million people in his half of the divided nation.

Pham's visit to Red China could presage new moves both in South Viet Nam and Laos. He may well discuss what future joint strategy to adopt with the Chinese in the event the Laos talks break down and Western intervention follows.

If he gets any emergency food help from the Chinese it will be at the expense of Chinese masses, now described as suffering from near-famine conditions. The Chinese, who have in the past exported grain to get the foreign exchange needed to buy machinery, have this year been forced to import large quantities of wheat from Canada and Norway.

Britain-Soviet Issue Appeal For Ceasefire

14 Nations Called To Resume Talks At Geneva Today

GENEVA (AP)—Britain and the Soviet Union Sunday issued a joint appeal to the warring forces in Laos to stop fighting and announced that the 14-nation conference would get started again.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko issued this statement:

"Lord Home, as chairman of the next session of the Laos conference has decided after consultation with Mr. Gromyko to convene the 14th plenary session on Monday June 12 at 11 a.m."

"The United Kingdom and the Soviet cochairmen have agreed to send a joint message to the International Control Commission which will be dispatched tomorrow. The message reiterates the appeals of the cochairmen to the parties in Laos on April 24 to cooperate with the ICC in effecting a control over a cease-fire."

The three-nation commission is composed of India, as chairman; Canada and Poland.

The commission is a neutral body charged with supervising the cease-fire. The Western powers have been urging the Soviet Union to send it new and stiffer instructions, so that it could move freely to prevent new fighting.

A British spokesman, who gave out the joint statement, said nothing about this effort. Apparently it was abandoned at Soviet insistence and with U.S. approval.

On April 24, Britain and the Soviet Union appealed to the warring factions to halt their fighting. Such a cease-fire was a condition of the Western powers for attending the conference. It was proclaimed on May 3, and on May 16 the conference started.

But the cease-fire was not effective. Repeated violations were reported, by both sides.

Last Wednesday, pro-Communist forces took an important position at Padong from the army of the royal Laotian government. In protest, the Western delegations refused to allow a meeting of the conference to be held and said they would not attend again until they got satisfaction on the cease-fire.

The British spokesman said there were certain developments on the ground which seemed to indicate that the commission is operating on its own initiative. He refused to say what these developments were.

According to the latest report from the commission, it was unable to move to trouble spots because pro-Communist forces said it would be difficult to guarantee the safety of true teams.

Earlier in the day, Gromyko declined during a 50-minute meeting with Lord Home to join in the call.

The agreement was reached in a telephone call. Lord Home had U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and French Delegate Jean Chauvel as dinner guests. V. K. Krishna Menon, Indian minister of defense, came in for coffee.

In the course of these talks, matters were arranged with Gromyko by telephone.

The British spokesman also announced that the three princes heading the major Laotian factions had agreed to meet in Zurich later in the week.

One of the three, James Houston, 23, remained in fair condition at Prince Georges County Hospital with shotgun wounds in the face and head.

Police said the outbreak of violence began about 8 p. m. Saturday when the three Virginians blocked the path of John M. Warner, 18, who was driving on U. S. 301 in Upper Marlboro with der following a shooting spree at a tenant farm near here Saturday.

Police Pvt. John Sellner said Warner managed to go around the group, whom Sellner said had been drinking heavily, and drive about two miles to the farm tenanted by Peter Duval.

The Virginians followed the Warner car to the Duval farm and began firing on the farmhouse. Sellner said Houston and his companions fled in their car after Houston was hit by shotgun pellets. They were arrested on the main highway.

Belgium Monarch Expects First Child

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope John XXIII invoked a 500-year-old precedent Friday to tell the world that Queen Fabiola and King Baudouin of Belgium are expecting their first child.

Back in the 15th Century, Queen Isabella of Spain, the monarch who sent Columbus off to discover the new world—traveled to Rome to tell the pope she was expecting a child and to seek the Pontiff's blessing on her unborn baby. The Pope then made the first announcement of Isabella's pregnancy.

Baudouin and Fabiola, the only reigning monarchs of a Roman Catholic country, Thursday broke the news to Pope John in a 40-minute private audience.

Bless the friend who lets you air your problems into her ears and doesn't air them all over town.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Every Woman Needs A Good Listener

A close-mouthed confidante is a woman's first and strongest friend: her invaluable safety valve for ventilating pent-up steam. If you think you haven't got one, look again. You probably do. When you recognize who she is, cherish her, hang on to her. She is an important part of your life.

She may not be your best friend, as we describe "best" in terms of the time and interests you share together. You may see or call your confidante only occasionally but, when you do, you sense her compassionate interest, free of envy or reproach. Effortlessly, without self-consciousness and without self-pity, you can talk to her more frankly and honestly than you can with anyone else. You can pour out all your problems, even the petty ones. You can invite her, unashamed and unafraid, into the deepest recesses of your heart, mind and spirit, where you have stored away your dreams and ambitions, your disappointments and anxieties.

Just in the telling, you experience untold relief and release.

and restoration. What makes your confidante so different, so special? Why are you unable to give her the kind of trust you cannot give anyone else, even to members of your own family?

First, she won't gossip. Second, she'll neither scold nor try to steal your problem away from you to solve it herself. All she has to do, all you want her to do is to LISTEN. Perhaps as you can listen to yourself, and learn what to do from your own words.

Paradoxically, she possesses two important qualities in her relationship with you — empathy and objectivity. Your husband, your mother, your sister or daughter may have the first quality — but it would be almost impossible for them to have the second. They are too involved with you — emotionally and physically — to consider the things that affect you without including themselves. They are too close to you to stand aside.

Your confidante is close in an entirely different way. She has empathy, which means she is like you, as if her own consciousness were projected into yours. Your reactions are her reactions. She can feel your feelings, laugh when you laugh, weep when you weep. By this indefinable bond, you may be her confidante, too. How many times have you given your mutual difficulties an airing only to discover that all they needed to snap back your perspective.

This is the same wonderful self-help so sensationally effective in psychiatry today as a prescription to preserve mental health rather than to wait until mental illness needs a cure. With this emphasis on LISTENING instead of LECTURING, it has accomplished near-miracles through group therapy and "non-directive" counseling.

But it's not a new theory at all. It began the first time, centuries ago, when two women with a lot in common decided to turn to one another for confidence.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

(Copyright 1961. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

HOLLYWOOD — I was greatly intrigued to hear that Walt Disney has signed Michael Anderson Jr., to play the adventurous son of an English peer in "The Castaways." Seventeen-year-old Michael Anderson Sr., and he have been exposed to British TV audiences since he was twelve. Maybe many of you saw young Mike as the son of Robert Mitchell and Debra Kerr in "The Sundowners," in which he was very good.

Michael joins Maurice Chevalier, Hayley Mills and Charles Laughton in Walt's version of this Jules Verne adventure story, which goes before the cameras in London this summer.

"How did you happen to buy the California Racquet Club?" I asked Ernie Kovacs. "Oh," he said, "I went in to make a telephone call and decided I might as well buy the place."

Ernie and Edie bought the California Racquet Club, formerly the Westside Tennis Club, for two million dollars. This doesn't just mean the club, but all the property surrounding it. They will continue to lease the club.

"I believe in investing money in real estate," said Ernie. He thinks if you make money in a town you should show your faith in it.

The late Maria Montez' daughter, 15-year-old Maria Christina Aumont, revealed she has some of her mother's flair for temperament. Recently, when she was offered a movie role in Paris, she was ready to defy papa Jean Pierre's edict that she must finish school before seeking a career.

After much argument Maria Christina finally agreed to complete her education, but when that is done she will leave the classroom to a sound stage, because she is determined to follow in her mother's footsteps.

As I was leaving St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York I heard someone call my name. It was Mrs. Tom Dooley, Sr., Dr. Tom Dooley's mother. She said she was due to take a bow on the Ed Sullivan show and was giving the money she received to Medico, to which her son dedicated his life.

When I arrived back in Los Angeles I asked Martin Manulis what was being done with "The Night They Burned the Mountain."

He said he is already to go but hasn't an actor for the Dooley part. "When I came back from New York a few months ago," he said, "I had Tony Perkins all wrapped up and Josh Logan to direct, but I could never get a go sign from the studio." He added that he is eager to get started on the picture while the interest in young Dr. Dooley is so high.

In New York everyone asked me about Rock Hudson and Marilyn Maxwell who seem to be together practically every night. I said I had seen them at the Ella Fitzgerald opening and Rock seemed to enjoy being with Marilyn, but I've seen him enjoy being with other girls.

The I saw them together at the Warner Bros. dinner and they held hands all through the show. Rock had so much trouble with his first marriage that I doubt if he'll marry again soon—but I've been wrong. It could be that when Marilyn's divorce from Jerry Davis becomes final they'll take the step. I don't believe it though.

The Warner Brothers' idea of letting newspaper people from all over the world see their product, visit their studio and entertain them seems a very worthwhile idea. I talked to newspaper people from London, from Canada and many from the Hearst papers who were there.

We sat at the table with Onna White, who is doing the choreography for "Music Man." She did the same for the show given the newspaper people after dinner.

Shirley Jones, who also sat with us, says that her husband, Jack Cassidy, is in Maryland where he is appearing in "The Vagabond King." She told me she won't move into the Merle Oberon house for three months. First she and Jack want to sell the house where they are now living.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Merle Oberon is in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for very minor surgery. She'll only be in a few days.

Fess Parker's wife Marcie expects their first baby in Santa Barbara in 10 days. Fess is hoping the arrival will be on a weekend because he will be in Hollywood acting in "Hell is for Heroes."

I keep hearing that Joan Collins and Warren Beatty are no longer "that way" about each other, but seeing them at the Warner Bros. dinner, I am sure it can't be true—they were very lovely-dovey.

There are whispers that the Kim Novak-Dick Qaine romance has been revived and that they are seeing each other both on the set of "Notorious Landlady" and off.

Leo Genn, whom I enjoyed so much in "Devil's Advocates," writes me that he expects to be on the coast during the summer before he returns to England.

"Devil's Advocate" is closing.

Good-looking Mayor Frank Bort of Palm Springs tells me that he is a partner in a new million dollar beauty retreat, La Reina of Palm Springs, which opens in November. This sounds like Elizabeth Arden's Main Chance or Golden Door.

Friday night Dean Miller and Idy Wagner, from his hometown of Hamilton, Ohio, were married. This is the first for Dean, who is a co-star of "Here's Hollywood" and also co-stars in "December Bride." They leave for Europe on a business and honeymoon trip.

Commercial Jets To Lower Speeds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Trans World Airlines Friday ordered its jets to observe new lower speed limits around major air terminals.

The speed restrictions were put into effect in accordance with a request from Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb E. Halaby. Halaby has asked all airlines operating jet-powered equipment to participate in a voluntary speed restriction program as a means of lessening collision danger.

TWA said its jets will not exceed 292 miles per hour at altitudes below 14,500 feet within 50 miles of a destination airport.

W.Va. Governor Seen Backing Sales Tax Hike

Legislature Will Meet Wednesday

By CARLO J. SALZANO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron apparently is studying the possibility of asking the Legislature for a 3 or 4 per cent consumer sales tax on everything except groceries.

The Legislature will convene Wednesday in a special session called by Barron. Its primary purpose is to find money to match new federal funds available for children of unemployed fathers.

United Press International learned Sunday that Barron has received figures from the State Tax Department on the probable receipts from each levy.

The tabulations given Barron show that a 4 per cent sales tax on all purchases except groceries would yield about $40 million a year. A 3 per cent tax under the same conditions would yield about $31 million, or about the same as West Virginia's 2 per cent tax on all purchases, including groceries.

Must Change Law

Barron is said to be leaning toward continuation of the temporary three-cent sales tax on all purchases through the 1961-62 fiscal year but apparently is studying ways of making it less painful. The extra penny on the dollar approved by the Legislature last January is due to expire Aug. 31.

Extension of the three-cent levy would provide about $9 million in additional annual revenue. Barron also wants the Legislature to change the state's welfare laws so as to enable him to combine his Emergency Employment Program (EEP) with the new federal child-aid program.

The State Public Assistance Director, W. Bernard Smith has told legislative leaders West Virginia needs a minimum of $7 million in new money to participate in that and the medical-care programs. If EEP and the child-aid programs are combined, it would enable Barron to triple the public works payroll to between 15,000 and 18,000.

The 4 per cent tax with food exempt would more than cover that sum but legislative leaders have indicated they want to explore other possible sources before pushing for any version of the consumer sales tax.

House Speaker Julius Singleton of Morgantown said House and Senate leaders will meet Monday afternoon to study "several avenues" of approach to the financing problem. Singleton has said he favors reappropriating about $5 million of EEP funds for matching purposes, allowing the third cent on the consumer sales tax to expire as scheduled.

Others Have Ideas

Barron has been invited to the meeting and apparently will have Tax Department figures to help him argue his case for the consumer sales tax hike.

But other legislative leaders have ideas of their own on how the money could be raised.

One senator, who asked that he remain unidentified, said he did not "know why we can't approve a surtax on the gross sales tax." "If you recall, that was one of the recommendations of the State Tax Study Commission," he added.

The commission's final report late last year said that each 10 per cent increase would yield $5 million. The same report said that an increase from 2 to 3 per cent in the consumer sales tax would yield an additional $1.5 million a year if food purchases are excluded.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Transfer of the National First Aid and Mine Safety Rescue contest from Pittsburgh to Charleston, W. Va., next Oct. 2-4 has been announced by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Chaos At Home May Be Normal

Some comfort for parents of teenagers was provided a few days ago in a speech by Robert E. Switzer, director of the children's service of the Menninger Foundation. He suggested that parents need not be alarmed if they find themselves clashing repeatedly with their youngsters.

"Adolescence is by nature a normal interruption of peaceful growth and maturation," he said. "The lack of interruption is abnormal. Adolescence is at one and the same time a number of things that cannot go smoothly, a turning away from childhood and a mourning for the lost pleasures of childhood; a headlong rush into adulthood and an evasive action to avoid adulthood. A teen-ager is making an effort to be a normal adult, which means he adjusts to work and his colleagues adjust to him. It also means he has the capacity to love someone other than himself."

The psychiatrist said that during this period teenagers are learning to develop the quality of being considerate. "We parents think it will never happen, but it will."

This is reassuring — that to clash with one's youngsters in their teens is normal. For is there any parent who doesn't?

But knowing this doesn't remove the despair at the chaos having a teen-ager in the house causes. Parents just have to live through it, hoping their nerves survive until that time when — all of a sudden — the teen-agers are grown up.

A sad aspect is that when they finally become adults they also leave, and the parents are left only with their memories and occasional visits — until the grandchildren come.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Where Do We Stand?

It is clear from President Kennedy's speech and from the continued fighting in Laos that whatever President Kennedy and Chairman Khrushchev said to each other was introductory. Neither side had prepared itself for decision and no decisions were reached. Our President recognizes the continuing dangers that this country faces in the presence of world Communism. It is impossible not to be realistic. The most comforting statement that he made concerning his visit with Khrushchev in Vienna is contained in these carefully chosen words:

"I will tell you now that it was a very sober two days. There was no discourtesy, no loss of tempers, no threats or ultimatums by either side. No advantage or concession was either gained or given. No major decision was either planned or taken. No spectacular progress was either achieved or pretended."

Further, the President said:

"No new aims were stated in private that have not been stated in public on either side. The gap between us was not, in such a short period, materially reduced, but at least the channels of communication were opened more fully."

The essence of our difficulties with Soviet Russia is that neither people understands the other. To Soviet Russia, our materialistic capitalism is without historic meaning at the present time; to us, their atheistic materialism is without humane meaning. What we call faith, they call superstition; what we call democracy, they call monopoly. Marxism is not only a complex of new ideas but a distortion of old ones. For the first time, an American President stated the enormous differences between the Western and Communist mind in precise and accurate terminology:

"For the facts of the matter are that the Soviets and ourselves give wholly different meanings to the same words: war, peace, democracy and popular will. We have wholly different views of right and wrong, or what is an internal affair and what is aggression. And above all, we have wholly different concepts of where the world is and where it is going."

Further President Kennedy said:

"We believe in a system of national freedom and independence. He (Khrushchev) believes in an expanding and dynamic concept of world Communism."

"And the question was whether these two systems can ever hope to live in peace without permitting any loss of security or any denial of the freedom of our friends."

Ultimately the conversation between Kennedy and Khrushchev came down to a conflict of threats, gently given on an historical basis in most polite terminology. Khrushchev believes in the eventual and inevitable triumph of Communism. He believes that nothing can stop the advance of Communism and that he does not need wars as an aid. He believes that all the new nations of the Earth will be Communist. On the other hand, Kennedy takes the position:

"Yet all this does not mean that our nation and the West and the free world can only sit by. On the contrary, we have an historic opportunity to help these countries build their societies until they are so strong and broadly based that only an outside invasion could topple them. And that threat, we know, can be stopped."

"We can train and equip their forces to resist Communist-supplied insurrections. We can help develop the industrial and agricultural base on which new living standards can be built."

"We can encourage better administration and better education, and better tax and land distribution, and a better life for the people."

"All this and more we can do because we have the talent and the resources, to do it if we would only use and share them."

Let us face this speech frankly, it is a warning to the American people that war is not only possible but probable. In fact, as things stand, war may be inevitable because neither side can move from its ideological base. Here is something novel in recent American life. John Kennedy is not a pragmatist; he is an idealist who totally believes not only in the American concept of the life of man in freedom but who also believes that it is his responsibility and destiny to assure the survival of this way of life. Of this, he says:

"I bear the responsibility of the Presidency of the United States and it is my duty to make decisions that no adviser and no ally can make for me."

'They Have A Nerve, Making Us Illegal'

Kennedy's Health Becomes Source Of Concern

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Everybody is sorry to learn that President Kennedy's back is giving him trouble again. Though only 44 years old, he still suffers occasionally from a strain developed in college-day athletics. It was aggravated by a war injury.

But the President's health has been a source of worry lately for other reasons. Many people here feel he has been working too hard. This is, perhaps, a natural tendency for a new president. There is so much to do—so much to learn—that it produces a kind of impatience, if not impulsiveness.

Mr. Kennedy has never been the executive of a large organization and therefore has had little experience with the problem of delegating responsibility to others. He likes to do things himself—to get at questions firsthand and to communicate directly with subordinates in the government who are handling a problem rather than go through their superiors.

This is a commendable desire but, unfortunately, in government, as well as in business, there is a limit to what the top executive can afford to do with his time every day if he doesn't want to become unduly engrossed in detail. After a while the executive who tries to do too much in a day finds that he really hasn't much time to think.

Mr. Kennedy has nearly 30 advisers around him—mostly young men—who report to him directly. They have no particular titles but do special tasks for him. He doesn't mind if they conflict with one another in jurisdiction. Also, he is virtually his own public-relations manager and has a flair for the best ways to get publicity.

This is important because the 1964 convention days aren't too far away—only 36 months—and experience shows that many a vote is influenced long before an election is at hand.

The President is also a smart politician. He knows how to keep his political fences in good repair not only in Congress but in the political organizations in the various states. Hence, he is on the telephone himself a good deal more than most other presidents in recent years have been. It all adds up, however, to an effort to do too much in too short a time.

The fact that President Kennedy may have to use crutches now and then does not afford, of course, the slightest basis for assuming that he will lose any mental vigor. It will be recalled that the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt wasn't able to walk and, when he did move a few steps, it was by the use of crutches or a wheel chair, but his mind wasn't any the less active. Throughout the whole administration of four elections, the news photographers courteously refrained from publicizing Mr. Roosevelt's physical disability.

It is understandable that Mr.

Kennedy would want to accomplish as much as he can in the shortest time possible. But the success of his administration will not be judged by the quantity of laws he has gotten through Congress or the number of speeches he has delivered. It will be appraised on the quality of his performance. Individual activities — such as the Cuban Fiasco — could have more bearing on how the voters react to an administration than a large amount of welfare legislation. It will be recalled that the late President William Howard Taft made a creditable record on legislation but served only a single term. He was responsible for many needed reforms and useful acts by government. But he happened to sign a tariff law that he conceded later was a mistake, and the whole country — which was then disturbed by the high cost of living — blamed him for that particular error and forgot the constructive achievements.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MORSE CODE — Sen Wayne Morse, of Oregon, is the marvel of the Senate these days. Morse has had probably as stormy a career in the Senate as any man within memory, but recently he seems to have turned over a new leaf.

No longer is he argumentative, tart or short with his colleagues. No longer does he involve himself in lengthy debates and lengthy speeches. No longer does he present himself as the former Republican who rebelled against GOP conservatism and fled into the ranks of the Democrats.

In a recent exchange in the Senate, Morse, who was piloting an important bill through the chamber, went out of his way to be polite and considerate. One of his astonished colleagues felt that Morse was behaving in that manner in order not to alienate any doubtful votes, and thought he'd needle him into his old ways by commenting on his politeness of "the last few days."

Unruffled, Morse replied, "I have always tried to be courteous and good natured. If at any time earlier than the past few days I have not been courteous to the Senator, I here and now offer my apology."

Birth Control Pills For Men Being Studied

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Dr. John MacLeod on experimental amebic dysentery in rats. One of the most potent of these agents killed the ameba but also affected the sperm of the rats.

According to a story in Medical World News, this side effect turned out to be reversible; after the drug was stopped, the sperm became active. When the chemical was given daily to humans, it produced effective sterility within a few weeks. Flatulence was the only side reaction except dizziness, which developed in a few. The report also stated that the drug intensified the effects of alcohol so that one drink was enough to make the person intoxicated.

If the drug follows the history of oral contraceptives for women, it might be years before it reaches the market, if ever. The female counterpart was made available several years ago after years of research and trials on thousands of women.

The pills discourage ovulation and make the ovaries as nonproductive as they are during pregnancy. Sterility occurs so long as the drug is taken, because ova are not being produced. The preparation does not interfere with menstruation or with any bodily function.

ALCOHOL AND BRAIN

R. N. G. writes: Is there a machine that will test the damage done to the brain cells by alcoholism?

REPLY

No. The electroencephalograph comes close in that it detects abnormalities of the brain waves. But the changes are not specific for alcoholism and might stem from other causes. Psychological tests might be helpful, as well as a discussion with the alcoholic concerning past and present events to determine the amount of deterioration.

President Lauds Big Brothers For Work With Youth Of America

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — A lineman for the Philadelphia Electric Company wrote me the other day: "I would like to do something for my country as President Kennedy asked. My trouble is, I don't know what I can do to help. Please don't tell me to join the Red Cross or some charity drive."

His letter was typical of many others I have received and thousands which the White House has received. And the other night, President Kennedy, at a Big Brothers dinner, answered, it seemed to me, these letters.

He was talking about the youth of America, because Big Brothers are dedicated to the system of having one man help one boy as his friend, advisor, and big brother.

So President Kennedy said: "Here is a most important cause for this country. Drew Pearson, had in his article this morning some statistics which I would hope every American would read, and I have three statistics here which I think are important. In the next ten years seven and one-half million American young people will drop out of school before they graduate; two and one-half million will not have finished the eighth grade.

"In the next ten years 26 million men and women, boys and girls, twenty-five years and under, will come in the labor market and be looking for jobs. And during that same period of time the jobs available to those who are only semi-skilled, who are not well educated, who are not well adjusted, who are not well motivated, those jobs will become less and less."

Waste Of Youth

"Now I feel that we are a city on a hill and that one of our great responsibilities during these days is to make sure that we in this country set an example to the world not only of helping and assisting these youngsters to fulfill their own destiny, but also demonstrating what a free people can do."

"We cannot possibly permit the waste of hundreds and thousands of young boys and girls who grow up in underprivileged areas, many of them in our northern cities, who drift into life without ever developing their talents, ultimately may end up in a life of crime."

President Kennedy was speaking from very rough notes which I had seen him scribble during dinner. But he was speaking with great sincerity. And at this point it seemed to me he answered the question of the Philadelphia Electric Co. lineman and many others.

"This is a free society," he said, "and many people write to me and say 'Well, what can we do for America, what are we supposed to do?'"

"Well, I suppose it might be easier if I could say that I wanted them to go ashore on a bombarded beach or take some action one afternoon which would make a significant difference in the life and survival of our country."

"But those are not really the kind of responsibilities which we are going to have to meet in the coming days and years," the President continued with great conviction. "It's a much slower and more gradual task. There is no final definite responsibility or commitment which we must accept to fulfill our responsibility."

He says that Adolf Hitler had great intuitive power; that he seemed to divine things without analyzing them. Before Thompson and his committee made their report to the British Home Office on Nazism, they saw documents which showed the grand scheme Hitler had in mind.

The extermination of Jews was but one step in his plan. Step two was to abolish Christianity. His plan was to kill Jesus first because it is the root of Christianity. Once the root was dead, and, assuming that his armies were victorious in the field, Hitler proposed to outlaw all Christian churches.

He proposed to replace Christ with the old Wagnerian gods of mythology — Wodin and Thor. As chief god, Adolf Hitler proposed himself. The people of Europe would, in time, pray to him, Thompson said he saw the prayers. They had already been printed before the tide turned against Germany.

It sounds insane, of course. But it is more insane than the plan to kill 6,000,000 Jews for no other reason than that they were helpless? The so-called good people of Germany may not have approved the killing of Jews, the burning of synagogues, and the looting of shops, but who among them was brave enough to stand up and say: "Stop!"

No one. They stood and watched. Or they turned away. The same thing happened to the Christian martyrs in the Colosseum at Rome 2,000 years ago. When they were chewed to death by wild animals, who among the Roman citizens stood to protest to Caesar? No one.

The doctor and I talked informally about this and about children. He has great psychological experience with them and, as always, he found it difficult to capitalize the mistakes of parents, but I drew two lessons from our chat. One is that parents expect adult responses from children. They are not content to permit the child to be a child. Mothers and fathers tend to project their own unhappiness into daily critiques of their youngsters. The other lesson is that the worst thing a parent can do is to permit a child to do as he pleases. He expects restraint, even punishment, for wrongdoing. A little slap on the pants may be as important as a kiss.

Knowledge is as nourishing as bread.

Today he teaches at the Einstein School of Medicine, which is part of Yeshiva University. As a Christian, this makes the doctor a small minority working among Jews. I wanted his opinions on anti-Semitism. It is the disease which made Adolf Hitler the scourge of Europe and it made Adolf Eichmann the mass murderer of all history.

Like most psychiatrists, Dr. Thompson finds that questions can be answered simply. Life is complex; life is hard. Every aspect of it has its qualifying clauses. Anti-Semitism, for example, is a term which means unremitting opposition to Jews. The doctor told me that it is a symptom of a man's dissatisfaction with himself.

There is something inside of him which he cannot tolerate. Rather than face it, he turns his hatred outward against others: Jews, Chinese, Catholics, Negroes, Puerto Ricans, any group. The Jews were a good target because they were a minority in each country and they preferred to live apart from the rest of the community.

Hate can make a little man feel big. Dr. Thompson feels that what the world lacks is a respect for justice toward all men. He does not use the limping word "tolerance," or the effusive one "love," or even the pretty one which we call "brotherhood." Justice is the word, and we must learn to care enough about all men to see that justice is accorded to them at all times.

"Streets to Get New Look"—headline. City Hall at long last decided to give 'em a bath?

"We must do all the gradual things which are unspectacular, and in many cases seem unrewarding — such as helping a foreign student or doing what you are doing here tonight."

What Can We Do For America?

"No one in the United States other than those who are associated in your work will possibly recognize that the effort you make here tonight, or, more important, have made week by week, year by year to help one, two, three boys or girls — they probably will not realize that this represents a significant contribution to the maintenance of our country. But if it's done by enough people for a long enough period of time, it will represent a significant contribution."

"The government of the United States, or the president, cannot, in a free society, command — nor should they — those actions for the benefit of the state which our adversaries are able to do with ease. These things must be done in a voluntary manner and they must be done by our own individual impulse."

"Therefore, I think this work that you are doing is most important in a most important time and life of our country."

"And, if in that effort, you are able by the passage of some hours of a busy life to make some significant difference in the life of one of our fellow Americans who might without your help slip into an experience which could prevent him from ever fulfilling his responsibilities to the maximum as a participant in our society, then I would hope you would feel that you've not only met your own obligations as an individual but also as a participating member of a great society."

"So I congratulate you tonight, and those who are joined with you. This is the sort of thing I mean when I say what we can do for America."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The stranger sat with his hands clasped across a knee. A television technician adjusted a black-hooded light so that it stared at the clear complexion of the man. I introduced myself to him and sat behind the desk. He smiled briefly, like a man who will not do it without reason, and said he was Dr. John W. R. Thompson.

He is a psychiatrist. His voice was so low that I asked if he could bring it up a little. He said he always speaks in mumbles. We both smiled. He was my guest on a daily report of the Eichmann Trial on WABC-TV, a local New York station.

We had time to talk before the broadcast. His hair is white and combed long across the top of the head. His hands are mute, but his eyes speak eloquently. Dr. Thompson was a member of a British commission of psychiatrists who went to the Nuremberg trials to study something which has been called the "Nazi Mentality."

Today he teaches at the Einstein School of Medicine, which is part of Yeshiva University. As a Christian, this makes the doctor a small minority working among Jews. Moorefield increased its league lead to 1½ games by belting the Salisbury Cardinals, 9-1, yesterday as runner-up Barreville's Old Exports lost for the second straight day, 5-2, to Mt. Savage in the Pen Mar Baseball League.

Casey Barr went the route and allowed only four hits as he pitched Moorefield to its eighth triumph in 10 games. Moorefield broke the game open with a four-run spurt in the eighth inning to give Barr his second win. John Keister absorbed his second defeat for the Cardinals who lost for the fifth time in 11 starts.

Barr also smacked a double and single and batted in three runs for Moorefield. Don Smith had three for four, George Hot and Ranny Raines collected two hits and Bob Keller hit a two-bagger in Moorefield's 13-hit attack.

Barreville, beaten Saturday by Lonaconing, bowed again yesterday as the Mt. Savage Old Exports backed Jesse Markley with a 10-hit assault. Markley struck out eight and walked only one in going the distance for Mt. Savage. It was his fourth win of the campaign.

The Hyndman Merchants chalked up their fourth straight victory, a 5-4 decision over the Lonaconing Carlings at Barton. Glenn Deremer was touched for nine hits by Lonaconing and weathered a three-run rally in the ninth to pick up the win.

Jack Lowery had two hits, Gary Hite belted a triple and single and Vohn Lehman collected three singles to pace the Merchants. Cookie Robertson's solo home run in the eighth inning and doubles by Ray Winner and Bob Munden were the big blows for the Carlings.

Lonaconing, trailing 5-0, put together four straight hits after two were out in the ninth to score three runs after Robinson's circuit blow gave the Carlings their first run in the eighth. Dave Wilson was the losing pitcher.

Hyndman's Merchants announced after the game that their contest at Frostburg next Saturday has been moved ahead and will be played Wednesday at 6 p.m.

In the other Pen Mar contest, Frostburg belted Flintstone, 11-1, as Ralph Pearce won his second game.

Bright opening number of Northwestern University's revue has the zing and gaiety of a Broadway musical.

Every year since 1929, except during World War II, Northwestern University's students stage a musical revue. The sets, costumes and lighting, and even the gals, have a Broadway and Hollywood look.

This year's big Waa-Mu revue is "Don't Make a Scene." The production parodies events and personalities of the past and present. About 125 students take part in the 34 numbers, and 110 others work behind the scenes at make-up, stagehanding and wardrobe repair and altering.

The show's general manager, Joe W. Miller, proudly says there is hardly a major show on New York's Broadway that is not without a former Waa-Mu performer. Miller has been managing the shows since 1929.

Among former Waa-Mu actors are Charles Heston, class of 1945; Nancy Dussault, 1956, starring with Phil Silvers in "Do Re Mi"; and Paul Lynde, 1948, who is starring in "Bye Bye Birdie" on Broadway.

The cast and producers say their production is "the best college show in America" — and here it is, on stage, and behind the scenes.

Martin Tangora and Karen Curtisteam up in the "Gendarme Jazz" number.

"BEST COLLEGE SHOW in AMERICA"

Stagehands place props in position for another scene.

Joy Hawkins and Margaret Adams apply makeup as they prepare to make their entrance.

Student Carla Harms puts her studies aside for a while to help sew costumes for the play.

Princess Margaret and husband, Anthony, are parodied in play. Mary Bloomquist, as the princess, gets an assist to her chair from stagehand 'ant Zimmerman, as Vance Jefferis, in role of Anthony, watches.

"Backstage Rhythm" is played by Karen Black, David Roberts and Michael Hilsenrad.

While musicians rest, elaborately-costumed trio act out scene from "Macbeth in Las Vegas," which predicts that the Nevada town will be turning to the classics for its spectaculars.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in the eighth grade and something is bothering me. I ran for a class office last week. A close friend of mine ran against me. My friend said he didn't think it was nice for a person to vote for himself, so he voted for me. I voted for myself and I won the election by one vote.

After the election my friend said to me, "Anyone who votes for himself is selfish, greedy and conceited." I say a person should not be running for office unless he thinks he is the best candidate.

President Kennedy voted for himself. His picture was in all the papers. I figure if it's O. K. for him it's O. K. for me. How about this?—SELFISH, GREEDY AND CONCEITED?

DEAR S. G. and C.: Grown-up politics are not the same as eighth grade politics. I'm sure Mr. Nixon knew that Mr. Kennedy would not vote for him and vice versa.

When your opponent told you he was voting for you, did you tell him you were voting for yourself? If you did, you are in the clear and, in my opinion, not selfish, greedy or conceited.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wouldn't believe this if it weren't happening to me. Please tell me what to do.

I am engaged to marry a lovely girl. The wedding has been set for August. Her folks have kept a written record of every gift they have sent in the last 15 years—birthdays, graduation, wedding and anniversaries. Alongside each gift is the estimated value.

They are inviting people they haven't seen in years, just because they owe a gift. The whole thing is nauseating to me and my parents are very unhappy about it. My fiancée doesn't like it either but she says her folks are adamant. Am I too idealistic as my father-in-law says or is this outrageous?—JUST THE GROOM

DEAR GROOM: It is outrageous but unfortunately, since the bride's parents put on the wedding (or should I say auction?) of mine ran against me. My friend said he didn't think it was nice for a person to vote for himself, so he voted for me. I voted for myself and I won the election by one vote.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's sister, who is a divorcee, is leaving in September for a three-month trip around the world. She wants us to keep her 9-year-old son. We have two children of our own and she feels that he would enjoy their companionship. Then too, we live across the street from the school. She wants to pay us $100 a month for the boy's room and board and we can use the money.

The problem is this: Her son has been raised with very little discipline. I am rather strict with our children and they stay in line or else. I told my husband that if the boy stays with us he must abide by the same rules that apply to our children. He says the boy isn't ours and we have no right to insist on it. What do you say?—FACTS FIRST

DEAR FIRST: I agree with you and I hope you will establish the ground rules with both the boy and his mother in advance. Two sets of standards for three children would be chaos unleashed.

Unless you make it clear that the boy is to be treated like a member of your own family, you are inviting much more than $300 worth of trouble.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

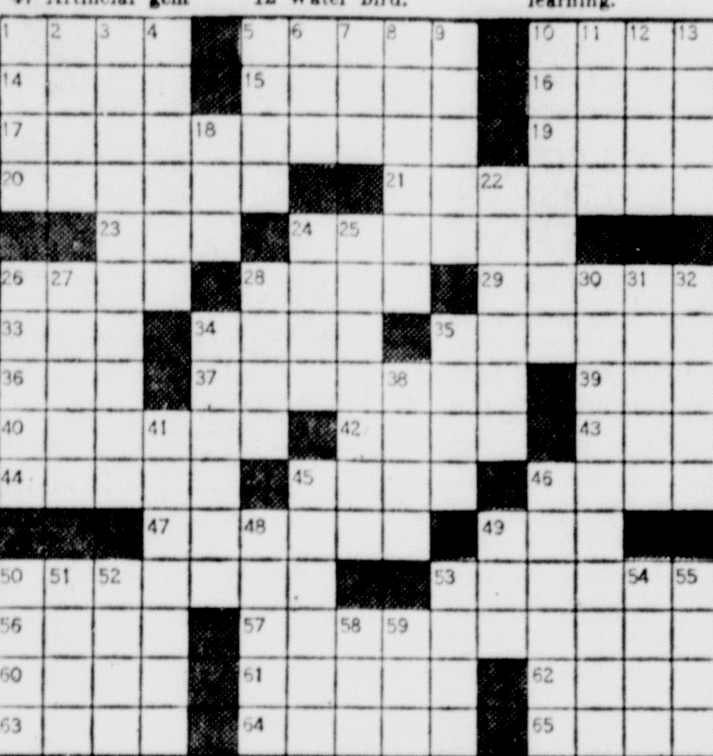

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1961 Field Enterprises, Inc.)

American Families Have More Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Half of all American families had more incomes of at least $5,600 in 1960—an increase of about $200 over 1959.

The Census Bureau, reporting this Friday, said the four per cent increase would be translated into a purchasing power gain of only about two per cent because of price increases during the year. For men who worked full time last year, half earned at least $5,400. This also represented an increase of $200 over 1959.

The median money income of full-time women workers showed no change for the year, holding at $3,300.

About 10 million of the nation's 45.5 million families had incomes of under $3,000 in 1960. Another nine million received between $3,000 and $5,000 and nearly 11 million had incomes ranging from $5,000 to $7,000.

The remaining 15.5 million families or 34 per cent of the total, reported incomes of $7,000 or more.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ 8 3 ♥ A Q 6 3 ♦ K Q ♣ A 10 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♣ Pass 1 NT. Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. The one no trump response to an opening bid of one club is a forward going bid showing a balanced hand of from 9-11 points. If partner has close to the maximum value a game should be available. A raise is therefore indicated.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ A J 10 6 4 3 ♥ 7 ♦ A 10 9 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four clubs. Four no trump is a conceivable alternative, but not advisable because the main concern is not actually with aces but rather with partner's club holding and a cue bid is more likely to bring forth the desired information.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ A ♥ K 6 3 ♦ K J 10 7 6 4 3 ♠ 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♠ 2 ♦ 2 ♥ 3 ♦

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three hearts. This is a strategic bid. If partner has the ace of diamonds plus protection in clubs, three no trump may prove to be best contract. If partner's values are of a more distributional variety, our cue bid will indicate the great trick taking potential of our hand and encourage him to proceed in diamonds.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ 6 ♥ A K Q 10 7 4 3 ♠ A 8 7 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three clubs. Distributional freaks are always difficult to bid accurately. However, in this instance, a three club bid may get the very answer we are seeking. If partner can raise the clubs or if he leaps to four hearts over our bid, a contract of six hearts would be a reasonable speculation.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ A K 10 8 ♥ K 8 3 ♦ A J 10 ♠ 6 4 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid?

A—Four no trump. You have a balanced hand with 15 high card points bolstered by two tens. If partner has a maximum no trump there should be a slam. The raise over game is the accepted way to ask him that question.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ A 6 ♥ A Q J 10 9 6 3 ♦ J 4 2 ♠ 6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

2 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four no trump. You have a balanced hand with 15 high card points bolstered by two tens. If partner has a maximum no trump there should be a slam. The raise over game is the accepted way to ask him that question.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A J 10 6 4 3 ♥ 7 ♦ A 10 9 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four clubs. Four no trump is a conceivable alternative, but not advisable because the main concern is not actually with aces but rather with partner's club holding and a cue bid is more likely to bring forth the desired information.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ 6 3 ♥ A J 10 6 4 3 2 ♦ K Q J 7 6

Your partner has opened the bidding with one heart. What is your response?

A—With seven high card points there is a definite obligation to keep the bidding open yet to solicit a call to action. A takeout at the level of two is not to be considered with a hand of this limited strength, so we come upon one no trump. Response at the level of evas, with the expectation of running out to the minor suit should a rude opponent suggest something like a double.
